

Michelle Caruso-Cabrera
Co-Anchor, CNBC "Worldwide Exchange"

Michelle Caruso-Cabrera is a co-anchor of "Worldwide Exchange", CNBC's first global daily business news program utilizing the resources of CNBC, CNBC Europe and CNBC Asia. Prior to "Worldwide Exchange," Caruso-Cabrera anchored CNBC's "Wake Up Call".

Caruso-Cabrera reported for NBC News from Baghdad, covering the elections and its impact on Iraq's post-war economy and has also traveled to Cuba, Brazil and Venezuela to report on and produce groundbreaking stories about the economies of those countries.

Caruso-Cabrera joined CNBC in 1998 from WTSP-TV in St. Petersburg, Fla., where she spent four years as a general assignment reporter. Prior to joining WTSP-TV, she was a special projects producer for Univision, where she won an Emmy Award for a five-part series on children with AIDS, as well as an Emmy nomination for a report on sexual abuse by clergymen. At Univision, she gained extensive experience covering Latin America.

In addition to her television career, Caruso-Cabrera has written for numerous publications including People en Espanol, Shape en Espanol and Selecciones (Reader's Digest in Espanol). Her articles focus on personal finance issues of importance to Latinos. She began her career in 1991 as a stringer for the New York Times, reporting on education issues.

Caruso-Cabrera has also been awarded Broadcaster of the Year from the National Association of Hispanic Journalists and was named one of the "100 Most Influential Hispanics" in the country by Hispanic Business Magazine. She earned a bachelor's degree in economics from Wellesley College.

